

NEW FALL AND WINTER GOODS!

Our All Sorts.

When is iron the most ironical? When it's a railing.

When are gloves unsealable? When they are kept on hand.

Why is an egg like a colt? Because it is not fit to use until it is broken.

Why is rheumatism like a glutton? Because it attacks the joints.

Why is a lady dancing like a horse in a canter? Because she is galloping.

What insect would denote that the Spaniards were defeated? The Spanish fly.

Why is the letter H like a cure for deafness? Because it makes the ear hear.

Why is a blush like a little girl? Because it becomes a woman.

Why is a cowardly soldier like butter? Because he is sure to run at the first fire.

The Czar Alexander is writing a book. It will be bound in Russia.

What part of a dog should be named to describe a certain condition of winter weather? It's nose.

Why is exhilaration like the consequence of breaking a rum bottle? Because it is a flow of spirits.

Why is a room full of married folks like a room that is empty? Because there is not a single person in it.

What sort of a throat is the best for a singer to reach the high notes with? A soar throat.

What is the difference between your granary and your granny? One is your corn-bin, while the other is your born-kin.

A young Englishman set fire to the hay stacks of the father of his sweetheart, in revenge for being denied the privilege of courting her. His was certainly a burning passion.

The Boston papers are careful to state that although Gov. Andrew was born in Windham, Me., that town at that period belonged to Massachusetts. The Hub is thereby gratified.

A man should indeed be ashamed and afraid of what is really shameful, but to shrink under every reflection upon his character, though it implies an ingenuousness and delicacy of temper, has nothing in it of true greatness.

An honest dame in the town of Rome, standing beside the corpse of her deceased husband, bawling in piteous tones his untimely departure, observed: "It is a pity he is dead, for his teeth are as good as they ever were."

"Why don't you trade with me?" said a close-fisted tradesman to a friend the other day; the reply was characteristic: "You have never asked me, sir. I have looked through all the papers for an invitation in the shape of an advertisement, and found none. I never go where I am not invited."

Trust not the oath of the profane; be sure they are spendthrifts of honor. Those who fear not God will hardly keep inviolate a covenant with man, and no occasional sacredness can attach to an habitual lust. The motto of their faith is, "Lightly spoken, lightly broken."

A Frenchman being about to remove his shop, his landlord enquired the reason, stating, at the same time that it was considered a very good stand for business. The Frenchman replied, "O yes, he's very good stand for the business—by me, we stand all day, for nobody come to take me move!"

A Providence boy, five years of age, having stolen a can of milk, his mother took him to task with moral suasion, and wound up her discourse by exclaiming: "What in the world are you going to do with the milk, anyhow?" "I was going to steal a little dog to drink it," was the crushing reply.

A young man in New Haven, the other day, rushed into a drugstore, and in great alarm asked the clerk if benzine was poisonous. "No, said the clerk. "why?" "Because," said the fellow, "a father went to the closet to take down the gin bottle, and by mistake took several swallows before he knew it." "He is all right," replied the clerk: "the only difference between benzene and modern gin is in the smell."

A Pittsburg mason has a negro at work for him in the capacity of a hod carrier, who is in the habit of going to sleep on the brick pile. The other day, while working on the second story of a house, he yelled, "More mort," several times, if not softer, and not hearing from the hod-carrier, looked down and saw him sound asleep, with a hod for a pillow. Yelling at him unsuccessfully, until hoarse, he adopted the novel expedient of throwing a brick on his head. The ruse succeeded. The dorky waked up, saying, "D—n dese yan musketeers! Dey won't luff a feller sleep."

KIND INQUIRIES.—Cousin Kate was a sweet wide-awake beauty of about seventeen, and she took it into her head to go down on Long Island to see some relations of hers who had the misfortune to live there. Among these relations there chanced to be a young swain who had seen Kate on a previous occasion, and seeing, felt deeply in love with her. He called at the house on the evening of her arrival, and she met him on the piazza, where she was enjoying the evening sir in company with two or three of her friends.

The poor fellow was so bashful that he could not find his tongue for some time. At length he stammered out: "How's your mother?" "Quite well, thank you."

Another silence on the part of Josh, during which Kate and her friends did the best they could to relieve the monotony. After waiting about fifteen minutes for him to commence to make himself agreeable, he again broke the silence by— "How's your father?" which was answered much after the same fashion as the first one, and then followed another silence like the other.

"How's your father and mother?" again put the bashful lover.

"Quite well, both of them." This was followed by an exchange of glances and a suppressed smile.

This lasted some ten minutes more, during which Josh was fidgeting in his seat and stroking his Sunday hat. But at length another question came— "How's your parents?"

This produced an explosion that made the woods ring.

VALUABLE RESIDENCE IN Saco
FOR SALE
The subscriber offers his property on Beach Street, Saco, for sale at a rare bargain. The house is a two story building, of red brick, painted and shingled, and finished throughout in the most substantial and modern style, having stable and out-buildings conveniently connected therewith. There are also many acres of land under cultivation, and a large number of fruit trees, etc. The location is the best in this vicinity, being high and healthy, in the centre of an excellent neighborhood, and affording a fine view of the surrounding country.
The sole reason for the subscriber's desire to sell is sickness in his family. To a gentleman who desires to purchase a residence of the above description, this is a rare opportunity.
